Mystery Fire Destroys Barn At Tinley Park

Late last Friday afternoon fire of unknown origin broke out in the barn on the farm of Mrs. William Maihoff southeast of Tinley Park. Mrs. Maihoff and her daughter were working in a nearby field while her son was helping a neighboring farmer make hay. Mrs. Siebradt, aged mother of Mrs. Maihoff was home alone at the time. She heard the crackling of the flames and saw the barn was on fire. She called until Mrs. Maihoff heard her and then the Tinley Park Volunteer Fire Department was called. They responded with their chemical truck but as the fire had too much of a start they could not save the building but turned their entire attention to saving the farm dwelling which was located close to the burning barn and it was with difficulty that the home was saved.

Two horses, two calves, a large amount of hay, grain and tools were burned. The loss is partly covered by insurance it is reported.

5000 Attend Camp Meeting

The largest and most complete meeting in the history of the New Lenox Epworth League Institute closed Sunday with an attendance of more than 1,000 during the morning, afternoon and evening sessions.

Attendance at the institute for the week was estimated at 5,000 persons by the Rev. H. E. Rompel, dean of the institute, this figure including visitors who came to meetings during the week, several times in numbers greater than 500.

The regular registration was 188 students, according to the dean.

A sermon was given Sunday afternoon by Dr. King D. Beach, pastor of the St. James church, Chicago, and president of the Chicago Preachers' meeting.

Communion was held in the morning. Dr. Leon L. Hammit, district superintendent preached the sermon at the morning services held at 10:30 o'clock.

A pageant under the direction of Mrs. Lydia Glover Desco, head of the department of pageantry of the Epworth league, took up the evening.

Many brought picnic lunches to the grounds and remained at the institute for the day.

The institute this year in addition to a large attendance, was noteworthy in point of the personnel making up the staff of instructors. Among other prominent persons in Epworth league work lecturing or instructing at the institute this year were Dr. E. R. Fulkerson, world traveler, diplomat and educator; Dr. Ernest Cherrington, of Washington, D. C.; Winifred Chapel, of New York, associate secretary of the Methodist Federation for Social Service; Dr. A. H. Smith, superintendent of the Kankakee district of the Illinois conference; The Rev. Ralph Wakefield, pastor of the First church, Aurora; the Rev. Arthur Klontz, pastor of the Morgan Park church; the Rev. Charles R. Goff, pastor of the Euclid Avenue Methodist church, Oak Park and the Rev. Beach, who spoke Sunday.

Congressman John T. Buckbee, of Rockford; Senator Richard J. Barr, of Joliet; Representative Lottie Holman O'Neill, and John Norris Hall, Lincoln lecturer, were speakers in a special program on Citizenship Day last Monday.

Mokena Sewer Plans To Be Submitted Wed.

The Mokena village board will meet in monthly session on next Wednesday night. A number of important matters will come up for consideration and action. The local Board of Improvements will also meet the same night and the much discussed sewer proposition will come up for consideration by the board. This meeting should not be construed as a public hearing as new plans for the sewer proposition will first have to be submitted and considered by the board before a hearing date is set.

Tinley Park Has Grain Rush

Tinley Park is a grain center of consequence at present. Grain is being hauled to the Brueggemann elevator from many miles around, considerable grain coming from Matteson and vicinity since the two elevators at Matteson have been closed. The past week there was a heavy movement on the Tinley market and the loading of grain cars carried on until late Monday night so the grain could be picked up by the local freight and be on the Chicago market by Tuesday morning.

Start Work On Route 51 Subway

The Rock Island railroad began operations Monday morning of this week on the subway east of Mokena on Route 51 when a pile driver started driving piles for the subway. It is understood that 130 piles are to be driven and it will be an all summer job before the subway is finished. It is likely that the job may run well until very late in the fall. The tracks are to be raised several inches. The highway for 400 feet on each side of the subway will be depressed to provide the necessary clearance under the subway.

The Town Doctor (THE DOCTOR OF TOWNS)

ANYTHING "RUN DOWN" IS UNATTRACTIVE

You have often heard people speak of a community or section of the city as being "run down". If you stop and look at the mental picture that "run down" creates in your mind, you will have a vision of unkempt, cluttered up streets, with mussy entry ways to store buildings and apartment houses, and yards littered with a little bit of everything.

Anything that is run down is unattractive—it repels rather than invites. It makes you say, "I wouldn't have that", rather than, "I sure would like to have one of those." In the case of a community, "run down" causes you to say, "I would not live here on a bet", rather than to say "I LIKE this part of town".

Anything done or allowed to be done that tends to clutter up a community is bad for the community and anything bad for the community drives business out of and away from the community, and when it is allowed to go on continuously, there is only one thing that can happen: the community runs down; people move out and business goes "floopy."

Therefore, it is only good business on the part of the people who make up a community to see to it that any practice that tends to clutter up is eliminated.

TINLEY TRIANGLE TALKIES

Howdy folks!

First of all we wish to correct an error in last week's paper. According to the paper the Triangle base ball team was to have played at Melrose Park, Joliet, but this game was canceled and the Triangles journeyed to Blue Island to play the Ace of Clubs.

One of the best ball games of the year was played by the Triangles. At the start of the game it looked as tho it would be a pitchers duel. It was until the eighth inning and then Tinley helped themselves to a few home runs, having obtained 2 previously, to win the game 5 to 3.

The Triangles pushed over the first run of the game in the fourth inning. Then Blue Island scored their first run to tie the score in their half of the fourth, but Tinley soon broke the tie with another run in the sixth inning and in the eighth scored three more to clinch the victory. Tinley's pitcher had 18 strikeouts to his credit, facing but 32 men.

Henry Boldt took the reigns of piloting the team Sunday as Art Beck the manager, was on his vacation.

The boys deserve much credit for their fighting spirit in Sunday's ball game. They kept plugging away till they were sure of victory.

Next Sunday the Triangles play at Tinley against the Blue Island Friscos. Everybody out and see a real baseball game. Nuff sed about baseball.

All ye members of the Triangle Club: there will be a very important meeting next Monday night, July 29th. It is about the dance if you care to know.

Come on folks get your tickets early for the big event August 3rd. They are selling fast. See you next week.

Tinley Couple Celebrate 35th Anniversary

On Sunday July 21, a host of friends and relatives surprised Mr. and Mrs. William Uthe in their home in Tinley Park, Illinois, the occasion being their 35th wedding anniversary. Among the guests present were: Mr. and Mrs. John Bieck; Mr. and Mrs. John Korenchen and family; Mr. and Mrs. John Cigan; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Kahover; Mr. and Mrs. Jack Habjan; Mr. and Mrs. Albert Bartusch; Mr. and Mrs. Harry Brose; Dr. and Mrs. Harvey Lancaster and family; Mrs. Anna Wilkie of Chicago. Mr. and Mrs. Christ Rauch and family; Mr. and Mrs. Henry Kolhler and family; Mr. Martin and Clarence Schultz of Blue Island. Mr. and Mrs. John Rauch; Mr. and Mrs. Emil Breitbarth and family of Orland Park. Mr. and Mrs. Philip Breitbarth and family; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Rauch; Mr. and Mrs. William Witte; Henry Witte; Mr. and Mrs. Carl Mager; Christ Breitbarth; Mr. and Mrs. Martin Uthe; William Uthe; Alfred Uthe; Mrs. Conrad Uthe and Miss Elizabeth Uthe. At a late hour the guests departed for their various homes wishing and hoping that their host and hostess would have many more wedding anniversaries. A sumptuous feed was enjoyed by all.

One practice common to communities, which is bad, is the distribution from door to door, from store to store, from yard to yard, from car to car, of all sorts and shapes of hand bills and dodgers.

There are many cities, communities and towns that will not allow it at all; others require a license fee sufficient to make it impractical, and they are wise towns.

There may be advertising value in these dodgers for those who use them, and certainly those who print them make a profit; but it is bad for the community and unless the community is so fixed, financially, that it can maintain paper pickers and street cleaners in sufficient number to clean up the mess they make, it is poor business, and as far as advertising is concerned, the same money, spent in other channels will undoubtedly bring greater results.

TINLEY LEGION POST NEWS

Our Post is just two members short of the quota which will put us in the 100 per cent class. There are still some ex-service men in and around Tinley who have not come in. We want every man who served in the World War—our slogan is: "You need the Legion, the Legion needs you". The commander would like to meet those "vets" who are still holding out. On Monday evening July 22nd the Boy Scouts under the leadership of Will Stockman, hiked to Boeyer's Woods. They were accompanied by the following Legionnaires: Comrades, Rowden, Baldwin, and Wallen. We are making arrangements to accommodate a big crowd at our dance this Saturday evening at the Saenger hall. A seven piece orchestra will entertain. "Nuff said".

TINLEY GARDEN CLUB NOTES

BY
Mrs. John Swisher

WHAT I FOUND IN THE WOODS
Into the woods for my pleasure
I went,
Seeking for nothing, on nothing intent.
There, in the shade, a small flower
I spied:
Beautiful, bright, it looked up starry-eyed.
Out went my hand; then I heard a voice say,
"Must I be broken, and wither away?"
Break it, I did not, but took root and all;
In my fair garden the flower did install.
Planted it there in a sweet peaceful place,
Where it still blooms in all beauty and grace.

—E. Dyke.

The last meeting of the Tinley Park Garden Club was held at the lovely country home of the Andersons, Mrs. Swisher being hostess. Plans were discussed for the coming flower show which will hold many new and interesting features. Mrs. A. C. Watson, speaker of the afternoon brought the club much information in regards to the Central States Flower and Garden Show which will be held at the Chicago Stadium from April 5 to 13th. The Stadium show will be held under the auspices of the Garden Club of Illinois, of which the Tinley Park Club is a member. Mrs. Frederick Fisher, the state club's president, will work with Mr. John Servas to make this show the best Chicago has ever had. Root beer and home made cake was served at the close of the meeting.

The Garden Club has just enjoyed another delightful experience in the form of a garden tour, sponsored by the Joliet Floral and Garden Club, and arranged by the secretary of the club, Mrs. George Arbeiter. The gardens visited were: Senator Barr Estate, Hobbs Estate, Grinton home, Alhaver estate, Moeton, Baron, Gerlach, Adler, Abbott, Lonily, Julius Braun and the Arbeiter Gardens. Much interest was shown in the beautiful Hawthorne tree on the Arbeiter grounds, which is, I understand the oldest tree of its kind in Will County.

Mrs. Theo. Baron served the ladies with cold lemonade, and delicious home made cookies, when they arrived at her garden, and as the day was an extremely warm one, the refreshments were greatly appreciated, as also was the fine berry cordial and cookies served by Mrs. George Arbeiter at the close of the tour.

The Tinley Park Garden Club wishes to thank the Joliet Floral and Garden Club, for this particularly interesting day.

AUGUST 3rd WHOOPEE

Only one more week and the biggest of all events is coming off at Tinley on August 3rd. Guess? Well its the big dance given by the Triangle Club of Tinley Park. Sammy Berk's Rhythm Kings will hammer out sweet melodious music. Don't forget August 3rd.

A CORRECTION

Thru a typographical error in the adv. of the Tinley Park Grocery & Market in last weeks issue the price of butter was given as 57 cents a pound when it should have read 47 cents per pound.

Tinley Lions Seek Phone Rate Reduction

The Tinley Lions Club held a very interesting meeting Monday night. There was a good attendance of Lions and they roared in a happy mood.

One of the big projects the Lions are now working on is to get a reduction of the telephone rate between Tinley Park and Chicago. The present rates from Tinley Park to Chicago are 20 cents whereas the rate from Tinley Park to Blue Island is 5 cents and the rate from Blue Island to Chicago is 10 cents and it is contended that Tinley Park should only be paying 15 cents instead of the present rate of 20 cents. The matter is to be taken up with the Illinois Bell Telephone Co. for adjustment.

The matter of purchasing some land for a park site and field house is also a matter now being considered.

The editor of the Tinley Park Times was voted in as a full fledge member of the Tinley Park Lions Club. An honorary membership was also granted the Blue Island Sun-Standard.

The Lions are planning for a big event on Labor Day when they will present another dance at Saenger Hall. As an added attraction it is planned to have a "hobo" parade, details of which will have to be worked out.

President Paul Rauhoff also called special attention to the annual report of Melvin Jones, Secretary-General of the Lions International in which Tinley Park Lions Club was given a brief writeup as follows:

"Tinley Park—Worked on zoning ordinance. Cooperated to reduce railroad rates. Instrumental in securing the extension of the city limits".

Watch for further Lions Club activities.

Tinley Park Boy Scouts Have Hike

Oh Boy! Did you hear about it? Well read this and know that the Tinley Park Boy Scouts did have a real, honest-to-goodness, sure enough, grand and glorious, thrilling hike and red-hot roast last Monday night. The night was perfect, and the boys, with their Scout Master, Mr. Bill Stockmann, also Mr. Frank Baldwin, George Rowden and Charley Wallen who are members of the Tinley Park American Legion Post, were all feeling fine as a "WLS fiddle". Talk about the games, oh yes, and that possum hunt!!! Man oh man. Next was the fire and after that those buns and hot dogs. What if a scout or two did get a blister on their tongues.

After the fun was over, both the big and little boys marched home in true scout fashion, declaring that they never had a better time. Mr. Stockman is to be congratulated on his work with the Boy Scouts as is the American Legion, for backing such a worthy organization. Our boys of today, make our men tomorrow. Let us all help in developing them into the kind of citizens we can be proud of. Who knows the Tinley Park Boy Scout troop may be training a future president! Scout Dick Swisher is the proud possessor of a "Ray-o-lite" won by holding the highest record of good deeds for this month. Keep your best eye open for more news about this growing and enthusiastic group of fine lads.

The Illinois Chamber of Commerce, through its industrial development department, headed by C. L. Hardin, has asked Clarence F. Buck, director of the state department of agriculture, for information concerning the distribution by counties of the 9,570,000 acres of Illinois soil in corn last year. The Illinois Chamber of Commerce intends to utilize these figures in determining where corn stalks may be converted into pulp most advantageously. President Scott Brown of the association is making the organization a real factor for good in our state.

Garret De F. Kinney, director of finance, under whose department administration of the gasoline tax law is placed, calls attention to a section of the law which provides that all gasoline in storage on August 1 is liable to the tax even though purchased during July. Penalties for violation of the provision may be a fine of from $25 to $500 and imprisonment in the county jail not longer than six months. In addition, the offender is liable for the amount of tax due together with all costs necessary to its collection. Owners of filling stations face an additional penalty in that their licenses to operate may be revoked. Ten days is allowed in which to report to the department of finance on gasoline so stored, and payment to the department of the amount of tax due on the stored gasoline must be made immediately thereafter.

Of the many important measures having to do with public health passed at the recent session of the Illinois general assembly, the most important and far reaching, in the judgment of Dr. Andy Hall, director of health, is that prohibiting construction and modification of sewer systems without permission of the state water board. This statute is designed to prevent and abate the pollution of streams, lakes, ponds and other waters. "A general survey of the streams of the state is anticipated under the new law," said Doctor Hall.

The new three-hour airway weather service has been put into operation at the Springfield office of the weather bureau. A few years ago two observations were made and telegraphed daily; now there are 15 each day—eight airway observations sent to the Omaha airport weather station, two to St. Louis, one to Chicago airport and one to Peoria in addition to the three regular observations, two of which are sent over the country for use in making weather maps, newspaper bulletins, etc. This work necessitates a day and night service, including Sundays and holidays.

The recent selection of William B. Wilson, former secretary of labor, as arbitrator of labor disputes between the Illinois coal operators and the United Mine Workers of the state is generally accepted as a distinct advance in the rehabilitation of that industry. The wage contract entered into last fall, which does not expire until March 31, 1932, provides for the joint selection of a man to fill this position. It is believed that this action will have a far reaching influence and that it promises to further promote the stabilization of the industry and is an additional guarantee to the consumers of Illinois coal that their source of supply from Illinois mines will be uninterrupted.

Mine fatalities in Illinois during the last six months were far below the average for the entire United States, according to an announcement by A. D. Lewis, of the state department of mines and minerals. During that period Illinois produced 659,415 tons of coal per each man killed, while the average for the entire country was 250,000 tons per each fatality. This condition of greater safety in Illinois was attributed by the director to safety campaigns, first aid training and the absence of big explosions, due to the use of safety lamps.

Aphids, or plant lice, and cutworms are particularly active in the flower gardens over the state this season, states C. C. Compton, assistant entomologist of the Illinois Natural History survey in a report to the College of Agriculture, University of Illinois. Even the adults of white grubs, more generally called "June bugs," have taken a liking to flowers this season, feeding voraciously on zinnias.

Attorney General Oscar E. Carlstrom has informed State Treasurer Omer N. Custer that the sums opposite the separate items listed in an appropriation bill should be accepted by him as correct rather than the general appropriation total, when the items do not add up to make the total.

U. S. Senator Otis F. Glenn announces that his candidate for appointment to the naval academy at Annapolis, has passed the examination held under the United States civil service. The successful candidate is David Martineau of 1630 Columbia avenue, Chicago. Martineau is eighteen years old. Illinois is entitled to five appointments.

The Narcotic Relief council, Chicago, organized to combat the narcotic evil, has been granted a charter by Secretary of State Stratton.

Clarence F. Buck of the state department of agriculture is urging farm advisers to co-operate in a united effort to control and eradicate noxious weeds.

Twelve senators and eighteen members of the house of representatives are on the "honor roll" of the Illinois Municipal league, published in the Illinois Municipal Review in connection with an article reviewing legislation of interest to the organization. "While the resume here of attitudes of members is representative, it is in no sense complete. Undoubtedly other members of the assembly should have been included in this review," reads a footnote.

The total production of coal for the state during the month of June was 3,318,758 tons as compared with 2,293,605 in June, 1928, according to the monthly coal report issued by A. D. Lewis, director of mines and minerals. The average number of days worked during June was 12.8 and the report shows that 40,904 men were employed. The total production for the first six months of 1929 was 28,364,854 tons.

The second annual poultry tour sponsored by the college of agriculture of the University of Illinois will start from Urbana on September 3, taking a group of interested Illinois poultry raisers to Indiana and Ohio for study of the methods of successful poultry raisers in these states.

Former Congressman James M. Graham, who is a member of the executive committee of the Illinois organization to promote the Lincoln National Memorial highway from Hodgenville, Ky., to Beardstown, has just returned from an inspection trip with other members of the committee over the proposed route to Vincennes. They attended a meeting with the Vincennes Chamber of Commerce, called especially with a view to effecting an organization in that state similar to the one now existing in Illinois. As soon as their organization is perfected both state organizations will move on to Kentucky and assist in effecting an organization there. It is then planned to effect an interstate organization, representing these three states, so that joint action can be made more effective. Mr. Graham reported enthusiastic interest all along the line.

Flower lovers who attend the Illinois state fair, August 17-24, have a treat in store for them in the many beautiful plots, where the foremost florists of the country will vie for honors. Two creations of exceptional beauty are the gigantic foliage carpet, a multi-colored mass of plants in an intricate design, extending along the promenade that leads north from the Women's building to the new grandstand for 137 feet, and a rock garden now being installed.

Those who attend the state fair this year will notice a great improvement in the motor and foot traffic facilities about the grounds. Exhibits are being spread over a wider area to avoid congestion. The old Eighth street road, which bisects the grounds and gives ready access to the free parking grounds, is being drained and widened so that traffic may move freely upon it. The parking grounds are rearranged so that cars can get in and out with less confusion and more cars can be accommodated in the sections nearest the grandstand and other buildings.

House bills 54 and 56, introduced by Representative Frederick W. Renick, Buda, and Senate bill 399, introduced by Senator Norman G. Flagg, Moro, change the terms and dates of election of township officers so that there will be no township elections after 1933 in even numbered years. The purpose of these bills is to eliminate township elections at a time when people are interested in primary and general elections for President, state and county officers.

Illinois has climbed into third position among manufacturing states with an annual output in excess of $5,386,000,000 worth of merchandise, according to a factory census for 1927 just completed by the Illinois Manufacturing association. New York and Pennsylvania now surpass Illinois. Coal is the key which has unlocked the door leading to Illinois' commanding position, the annual bulletin of the association states.

The code offices under Governor Emmerson are operating on a summer schedule, closing at four instead of five o'clock. In each department one employee will remain on duty until five o'clock for the accommodation of belated callers.

New building and engineering work contracted for during the last seven business days of the month ending June 30 in the state of Illinois amounted to $31,386,400. This is the largest weekly total for the first six months of 1929.

Senator W. L. Finn of the Forty-second district, Iuka, made an excellent record for attendance during the Fifty-sixth session of the general assembly. This was Doctor Finn's first term. He was conscientious and took every means to acquaint himself with the contents of the bills before he cast his vote, as he was anxious to do the best for the state and his district.

Gov. Louis L. Emmerson has returned from his fishing trip into Canada and is again busy in the executive office.

THE STORY OF DANIEL

LESSON TEXT—Daniel 1:1-4, 19, 20; 2:17-24.

GOLDEN TEXT—They that be wise shall shine as the brightness of the firmament; and they that turn many to righteousness as the stars forever and ever.

PRIMARY TOPIC—A Boy Who Obeyed.

JUNIOR TOPIC—A Boy Who Obeyed.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Preparing for a Life Work.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Character and Career of Daniel.

I. Daniel in Captivity (1:1-4).
His captivity took place in the third year of Jehoiakim's reign by Nebuchadnezzar, King of Babylon. While a tender youth, he was torn from home ties and made a captive in a foreign land to be trained for court service.

II. Daniel in Training (1:5-20).
In order to be of the largest service in the kingdom, it was necessary that he be taught to love the king and nation and to be detached from his own people and religion.

1. Daily portion of the king's meat and drink appointed (v. 5).
The object of this was:

(1) To gain the good will of Daniel. Such recognition would encourage him to give himself to the king's service.

(2) To supply the proper food for his physical and intellectual growth.

2. His name changed (v. 7).
He was named Belteshazzar. The object in this change was the obliteration of national and religious connections, and his identification with the Babylonian nation. Daniel means, God is my Judge. Belteshazzar means, Bel's Prince.

3. Daniel's purpose of heart (v. 8).
Daniel purposed in his heart that he would not defile himself with the king's meat and wine. He requested to be tested for ten days with the food which the law of his God allowed, agreeing to abide by the results.

4. Daniel's reward (vv. 15-20).
(1) Physical health (v. 15). The king's meat and wine would have been palatable, but to have partaken would have violated his conscience.

(2) Mental growth (vv. 17-20). He was found to be ten times wiser than the magicians and astrologers.

(3) Socially (v. 19). He was not only next to the king, but president of the college of wise men and prime minister of the empire, continuing through several dynasties (v. 21).

(4) Spiritual (v. 17).
God revealed to him Nebuchadnezzar's dream and gave visions stretching across the centuries. The secret of Daniel's success was:

a. Conscientiousness.
b. Loyalty to God.
c. Decision of character.
d. Prayerfulness.
e. Patience.
f. Courtesy.

III. Daniel Interpreting Nebuchadnezzar's Dream (2:1-46).
1. The dream revealed (vv. 1-35).
Nebuchadnezzar had a dream which made a tremendous impression on his mind, but its content had been forgotten. He urgently demanded of the wise men that they make known the dream and its interpretation. Because of their failure to do so the king was furious and commanded all the wise men of Babylon to be slain. Daniel sought an interview with the king and obtained time. In answer to prayer, God gave to Daniel the content of the dream. He told the king that in his dream he had beheld a great image with a head of gold, breast and arms of silver, belly and thighs of brass, legs of iron, and feet part of iron and part of clay. He beheld this image smitten by a stone which became a great mountain.

2. The dream interpreted (vv. 36-46).
(1) The head of gold represented the Chaldean monarchy, with Nebuchadnezzar as its head (vv. 37, 38).
(2) The breast and arms of silver represented the Medo-Persian power (v. 39).
(3) The belly and thighs of brass represented the Grecian empire under Alexander the Great (v. 39).
(4) The legs of iron represented the Roman empire (vv. 40-43).
(5) The stone cut out of the mountain (vv. 44, 45). This is the Kingdom of Heaven so graphically set forth in the New Testament.

a. The stone is Christ (Isa. 28:16; Matt. 21:42-44).
b. When did the stone strike? Observe that the impact upon this man was upon his feet (v. 34).
c. The Kingdom of Heaven is brought into realization through a great catastrophe.

Accepting Christ

We urge men to accept Christ, to accept Him now, and they say, "Well, we will think about it," or "Yes, I know it ought to be attended to." Why, you wouldn't act that way five minutes about your health or your wife's health, or your business.—Dr. Maltbie D. Babcock.

Relics of Bronze Age

Dug Up in Holy Land

Numerous objects dating from the Bronze age were excavated from beneath the floor of a limestone cave north of Jerusalem by Prof. William F. Bade, dean of the Pacific School of Religion at Berkeley, Calif., who is obtaining important data relative to the character and customs of the pre-Semitic inhabitants of Palestine 3,000 or 3,500 years B. C.

The cave from which the pottery and other articles were taken has been buried since the days of the Hebrew prophet Amos, who lived about 750 B. C. Pieces of pottery, jar handles, stamps and seals bear the name of the deity "Jah Jahu" and were probably made by the Canaanites long before the days of Abraham. Traces of a city with a great wall and projecting towers have been unearthed near the site of Tel Nabsbeth, which Professor Bade believes is the Mizpah of the prophet Samuel.—Pathfinder Magazine.

Too Bold

Elinor Glyn, the novelist and scenario writer, said at a wedding breakfast in Los Angeles:

"Young bridegrooms should be thrifty; they should look the future boldly in the face; yet they should always decline such an offer as Jones, the jeweler's.

"A young man went slowly into Jones' and blushed and said bashfully that he'd like to buy a ring. Jones beamed on him and answered:

"Here, young fellow, right here in this tray is the very thing you want—our famous combination three-piece set comprising engagement, wedding and teething ring combined."

The skeleton of a morosaurus, a type of dinosaur, which had been on hand since 1880, recently was put together and mounted at Peabody museum, Yale university. The wait of more than forty years was hardly a watch tick in the history of this giant beast, for it lived at a period estimated at 120,000,000 years ago. THE STORY

Jim Stanley, New York business man, orders his desk telephone taken to his home, intending to finish his dictation there. Rollo Waterman, his partner, comes in. Both are in love with Doris Colby. Stanley proposes to Doris, but she is unable to decide which to marry. Nina tells Doris her story, exacting a promise that Doris will not tell the source of her information. Doris is convinced of Stanley's duplicity and is broken-hearted, realizing that it is Stanley she loves. Waterman proposes and Doris accepts him. Stanley accepts the situation, and as a wedding present gives his share of the business to Waterman. He arranges with his secretary, Frank Wilson, to take charge of his other business interests. He is going to India. Doris tells Waterman part of Nina's story and he promises to "try" to find the girl. Frank Wilson, aware of Waterman's crookedness, leaves his employ. The latter begins to importune Doris for money. Bromfield, the gambler, is pressing Waterman for payment of gambling debts.

He knew that the idea was current that Waterman's transactions were not only unfortunate but that they were not all that they should be in business integrity. Not a word of all this had passed his lips. Not a word of it would ever pass his lips except upon his daughter's request. And now a new element had entered into the situation. Waterman was gambling not only in the Street, but at Bromfield's as well.

"Hm," he reflected, "there's bound to be a crash. Poor Doris!"

When Doris went to the opera that same evening she went in no gala mood. With all the will in the world she could deceive herself no longer. She knew that her marriage was a failure. She had come by this time to have a reasonably clear understanding of her husband's character. She knew, for example, that he was not truthful. Once when she had caught him in a lie she had let him see it. The result was an outbreak of temper so painful to her that she resolved never to risk it again. She did not know, of course, the exact condition of his business affairs, but from time to time her mind went back to the talk she had had with Wilson, and her heart sank.

Many eyes were turned upon her as she entered her father's box in the golden horseshoe, during the intermission after the first act. Among them were the eyes of Frank Wilson. As Wilson leveled his glasses at the Colby box, his eye caught the flash of diamonds. He had never seen Doris wearing this necklace before. In fact, she had worn it only twice before in her life. She did not care for jewels, and she had worn the necklace this evening only on her husband's request. It had been a family possession for many years and had come to her upon her mother's death when she was still a little girl.

"I wish," Waterman had said to her that morning, "you'd get out your diamond necklace and wear it to the opera tonight. You never wear the thing. What's the use of having it?" To please him she had consented. She went after lunch to her strong box at the bank, got the jewels and carried them directly home. There she turned them over to the efficient Betty, her personal maid. Betty had been a fixture in the Colby household for a good many years. She had been Mrs. Colby's maid, and at her death had been attached to the personal service of Doris. At this time she was a woman of middle age, gray-haired, witty, laconic, efficient, reliable, devoted.

There were four guests at dinner—John Rawley, and his young wife, who had been at school with Doris, and Doctor Briggs and his debutante daughter.

At table Waterman drank a bit too much, but as it made him more agreeable than he had commonly been of late, Doris reflected that it was an ill wind that blew no good.

"I see," said Doctor Briggs, who sat on Doris's right, "that you're wearing your mother's famous diamonds. I can remember the first time that I ever saw them. It was at the Academy of Music in Fourteenth street. The opera was 'Dinorah.' Patti sang that night."

"Ah, yes," said Doris, "the Academy of Music. I drove past it only yesterday. There were huge signs on the front of it announcing Charlie Ray in 'Papa's Troubles.' The world moves, doesn't it?"

"It moves," said Rawley, "but whether it moves forward or backward is another matter."

"Yes," laughed Waterman, "we're on our way, but we don't know where we're going."

The debutante giggled. Presumably she did other things at times, but she did nothing else this evening. She giggled to such good effect that Waterman, who sat upon her left, acquired the idea that he was a humorist and devoted himself to her exclusively. To the debutante it appeared to be a hilarious evening. She appeared to regard "Butterfly" as a comedy.

Now "Butterfly" was one of Doris's favorite operas, but for the first time in her life she did not enjoy it. She could not fix her mind upon it. She was thinking, as she had often thought of late, of Jim Stanley. Suddenly it occurred to her that she absolutely, positively, and wholly disbelieved every single word of the story that Nina Morgan had told her. She sat up a little straighter in her chair, as the realization swept over her. It was as if she had risen suddenly, instantaneously recovered from a long and serious illness. It was amazing. There was no sense in it—yet there it was. There was no explaining it—yet disbelieve it she did, utterly.

She spent the rest of the evening as in a daze. Puccini's tragic melodies surged over her head in vain. Before the final curtain she pleaded a headache, arose, and departed. She left Waterman with her guests, waving aside his insistence upon accompanying her home. She wanted to be alone.

Yet she had not finished undressing when he arrived. Waterman appeared to be in an affectionate mood. Affection with him was a poradic thing. It came in waves. Apparently there was a stormy sea tonight, but Doris checked him with a word.

"I'm tired," she said, "my head aches. I want to sleep."

Doris unclasped the diamond necklace and laid it upon her dressing table.

She fell asleep thinking of Nina Morgan. That girl—why had that girl told her that terrible lie? A lie it surely was—she knew it. How? Never mind—it was a lie—it must have been. She knew it. Thus she pursued the circle of her thought, arriving always at the same conclusion until peace came to her mind, and her bosom began to rise and fall almost imperceptibly, steadily, gently, with the ease and grace of youth and health.

Through the drawn curtains of the chamber came the faintest gleam from a distant street lamp. One of its vagrant rays fell dimly upon the jewels that lay upon the dressing table. There they slept in the not quite total darkness, faintly gleaming, like a pool of molten silver at the bottom of a well, under the starlight.

It may be that Mr. Colby would have taken no further interest in the relations between his son-in-law and the Goddess of Chance had it not been for the fact that, on a certain afternoon a few weeks following his luncheon with General Leavitt at the Lawyers' club, Waterman had taken one drink too many. He had been reviewing his

Lesson for Misers in Chinese Legend

An aged Chinese, noted far and wide among his neighbors for his penuriousness, was one day discovered running frantically up and down in front of his small hut, beating his breast and crying out in doleful lamentations.

"Woe is me!" he cried, "woe is me! Some one last night stole away the treasure which I had buried in my garden, and left a stone in its place."

"And why do you weep?" asked a neighbor. "You never used your treasure. Bring yourself to believe that the stone is still your treasure, and you will be as well off as you ever were."

The neighbor was right. A buried treasure is of no more value to the world than a buried stone. One of

Poor Time Ahead

Mother was going to take Billy visiting with her, so while dressing him she said: "You must be good today, exceptionally good, because Aunt Hattie is going to be there and she doesn't like noisy boys." "O, gee," said the youngster, "I see where I'm going to have a rotten time."

business situation. To summarize the unpleasantness of the conclusions to which this occupation had driven him, he had resorted to liquid consolation. Certain of these papers, he presently reflected, would be much better off in his safety deposit box than in his desk at home. He thrust them into his pocket, filled his glass again, emptied it, and started to go out.

As he reached the hall door he stopped. Those papers—what had he done with them? His slightly clouded memory could not instantly inform him. He thrust his hand into his pocket, drew out the papers, identified them, and thrust them again into his pocket—all but one. That one fluttered lightly over the edge of the jardiniere and tucked itself neatly between that ornament and the baseboard. There it lay, an hour later, when Mr. Colby, having enjoyed a cup of tea and a half hour's chat with his daughter, departed from the apartment. As he opened the door his eye caught a flash of white behind the jardiniere. Stooping, he picked up the scrap of paper, glanced at it casually—then read it with care. Thoughtfully he put it in his pocket and departed.

This was why, about noon the following day, Mr. Bromfield received this communication:

"Mr. Alexander Colby presents his compliments to Mr. William Bromfield, and requests the pleasure of his company this afternoon at Number One Hundred Broadway, at half past three o'clock. R. S. V. P."

Mr. Bromfield read this communication through twice, then he leaned back in his swivel chair, thrust his thumbs into the armholes of his waistcoat, put his feet upon his desk, and meditated. Anyone who knew him, seeing him just then, would have realized that he was considering a knotty problem.

At a few minutes before the appointed hour Mr. Bromfield's beautiful French coupe rolled up to the sidewalk in front of Number One Hundred Broadway. He was pleasantly welcomed by the lawyer, who was evidently no stranger to him.

"Sit down, Mr. Bromfield. I must apologize for asking you to come so far downtown, but I thought perhaps our meeting would be more tactful here than elsewhere."

"I quite understand, Mr. Colby. All sorts and conditions come to your office in the way of business. As a matter of fact, after receiving your kind invitation, nothing would have kept me away."

"You are curious to know why I wish to see you?"

"I admit it."

"Ah, well," smiled the lawyer, "I counted a little on that. Will you smoke?" he added, indicating a box of perfectos upon his desk.

"Thanks, no. The temptation to smoke in my line of business is so constant that it is a case of smoke all the time or not at all, and I have chosen the latter alternative."

"Yes—yes," Mr. Colby fell into a fit of abstraction. His silence lasted the pathetic truths of life is that so many fail to realize this fact. Had the old miser been generous enough to have shared his treasure with a needy world, he could at least have had the comfort of knowing that many would have joined him in bewailing his loss. But he had lost that which was of value to no one. Not even he himself had made use of it.

Airplanes Cut Journey

An airplane service for gold diggers and others concerned with the newly discovered fields in New Guinea is the latest aerial development. The new fields are on a 2,000-foot high plateau, 60 miles from the coast, a cross-country journey of six days, and a fleet of airplanes has reduced the trail to one of 50 minutes. All supplies for the fields are now carried by air, the machines returning to the coast with cargoes of gold and passengers.

"What can I do for you?" he said. "Oh yes—yes—to be sure," replied the lawyer, rousing himself, "I am upon the point of asking you to do me a favor."

Now, Bromfield had begun to have a suspicion as to the character of that favor, but he only said politely, "Anything in my power, I assure you."

Mr. Colby put out his hand, drew toward him a pad of paper, took up a pencil from the desk, and proceeded to draw a series of little pictures upon the pad. It was a way he had when conversing with clients. "I suppose," he went on, "you have heard of the theft of my daughter's necklace?"

"Naturally. Everybody has heard of it who can read the newspapers. Have you any clew?"

"None at all. The police have gone through all their customary motions. The private detectives employed by the insurance people have gone through theirs. And they have all drawn blank."

"I read in the papers," said Bromfield, "that the police were convinced from the first that it was an inside job."

"Yes, they always say that, when they fail in such a case. They feel that by such an announcement they can saddle at least a part of the blame upon the owner of the stolen gems."

"Still," said Bromfield, "you must admit that circumstances rather favor the inside theory. As I recall them, there was no evidence at all that the house had been entered. No locks were broken, no windows found suspiciously open, no evidence of the presence of a stranger in the apartment that night."

True—true, agreed the lawyer. Another silence fell. Again it was Bromfield who broke it.

"I can see," he said, "that you have formed some theory of your own."

"Perhaps," admitted Mr. Colby. He rose, walked to the window, and looked out. When he turned again to Bromfield, he spoke easily, swiftly, like a man who has come to a decision.

"Mr. Bromfield," he said, "I do not need to beat about the bush with you. It is in connection with the theft of these jewels that I have asked you to come and see me this afternoon."

Bromfield affected surprise. "I shall be interested to see how that can possibly be," he said.

The lawyer continued: "I will not disguise from you the fact that I have a definite opinion as to the identity of the thief. I think I know his name. I shall not mention it either now or at any time. I do not desire to punish anyone, no matter whom it may be. Fortunately, since something more than one hundred thousand dollars is involved, the insurance prevents any pecuniary loss. But entirely aside from that feature of the case, the diamonds have a sentimental value for my daughter and myself."

"I know," said Bromfield. "They belonged to the late Mrs. Colby."

"Quite so, and to her mother before her. Naturally, therefore, there is a special reason for regretting their loss."

"I quite understand," agreed the sympathetic Bromfield.

"Now, we both understand," went on Mr. Colby, "that though you are in person an agreeable, cultivated and presentable individual, nevertheless your business is one which is discounted by the law."

"Quite true," interrupted Bromfield, defensively, "and yet I'll have you understand that I've never felt myself a criminal. All my games are on the level—they always have been. When gentlemen play at my place they have an equal chance with me, with the exception of the slight percentage in my favor which is inherent in the rules of certain games, and I never have been able to see why it should be made a criminal thing for me to allow men to risk their own money upon the chance of gaining mine."

"My dear Bromfield," smiled the lawyer, "we're not here to discuss the ethics of your business. What I was getting at is this, though as I say, you're a person whom it is agreeable to meet, and your personal morals are so far as I know above reproach, nevertheless I know that in your line of business it is sometimes necessary for you to come in contact with certain gentlemen who are not so scrupulous as yourself. Is that not true?"

"Unfortunately, yes."

"Very well then, while I share your regret, nevertheless I wish if possible to make use of this lamentable circumstance."

"In what way, may I ask?"

"In this way," replied the lawyer, busy with his pencil upon a portrait whose features somehow took on a vague likeness to those of a man of whom he was talking at the moment.

"It occurred to me that it was barely possible that in your regrettably necessary association with some of these shall I say, disreputable persons, you might by chance stumble upon some information which would enable me to recover my daughter's necklace."

He stopped and glanced shrewdly at the gambler.

The latter met his gaze. "It is possible," he said at length.

"In that case," went on the lawyer, "I wish to say that if you are able to recover them, I will see that you are reimbursed to the full amount of the insurance, plus any necessary expense. In addition to that, you will place me under a great obligation."

The gambler leaned forward in his chair, and fixed his keen eyes upon the other. "Understand me now, Mr. Colby—I have at present no knowledge whatever as to the whereabouts of the diamonds."

Makes Life Sweeter

Children's stomachs sour, and need an anti-acid. Keep their systems sweet with Phillips Milk of Magnesia! When tongue or breath tells of acid condition—correct it with a spoonful of Phillips. Most men and women have been comforted by this universal sweetener—more mothers should invoke its aid for their children. It is a pleasant thing to take, yet neutralizes more acid than the harsher things too often employed for the purpose. No household should be without it.

Phillips is the genuine, prescriptive product physicians endorse for general use; the name is important. "Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. registered trade mark of the Charles H. Phillips Chemical Co. and its predecessor Charles H. Phillips since 1873.

Harold Cooper underwent an operation for appendicitis at the Silver Cross hospital, Joliet, Sunday night. He is improving nicely.

Mrs. Unbehaun of Deshler, Nebraska is visiting with Mokena relatives and friends. Her son John with whom she is making her home has sold out his photography business in Deshler and has purchased a similar business in Aurora, Illinois and has moved to the latter city.

The picnic held Sunday by the St. Mary Catholic church at the Cappel Grove Sunday afternoon and evening was a very successful affair.

A Ford touring car driven by Wm. Semmler and a Ford coupe belonging to Byron Nelson and driven by Alfred Heiman collided at the intersection of Third street and the Wolf Road Wednesday morning. A hind wheel of the coupe was broken off and the foot board and fender of the coupe was smashed. There was no damage done to the touring car. No one was hurt.

Mrs. Terpenning who has been ill and confined to bed for over two months, remains about the same.

Mrs. John Semmler who has been seriously ill and confined to bed for several months remains the same.

Mrs. Smith and son Charles have gone to Michigan on a vacation.

C. Sippel opened his electrical and radio shop in the former Leonhardt shoe shop last Saturday night.

MOKENA M. E. CHURCH NOTES
Harold Sandall, Pastor
Church school 10:30 a. m.
Evening Worship 7:00 p. m.

Our regular missionary day is on the first Sunday of each month. At this time an offering is made to carry on the christian work at large in all countries all over the world. Besides this we have a birthday bank. Last Sunday Miss Celia Cooper's class surprised us with a special offering for this splendid work. Here is an example of the Christian attitude of world brotherhood among our younger members that is worthy of notice.

Miss Smith is teaching the largest class in the school, it is a class of junior girls. We are wondering what we will do if it continues to enlarge.

On next Sunday evening Miss Almyra Koeller will sing at our worship service. The pastor will preach on the subject, "What men live by". It will be of special interest to young people. We invite you to a service of inspiration and worship. A piano solo will be rendered by Miss Evelyn Barnes for the Church school service Sunday.

Pictures Pull

Almost without exception, we strongly recommend the use of pictures as an attention value medium on all pieces of job printing. To help you get the right pictures for your printing is a part of our printing service. We always have plenty of cuts on hand from which you may pick the ones you need.

His Accidental End

There are all sorts of ways of putting things, and some sound much better than others. For example, there is the case of the man of whom Lord Coleridge used to tell, whose father was hanged for highway robbery. Some one asked him how his father died. "Sir," said he "he fell from a scaffolding outside Newgate while he was talking to a clergyman."—Youth's Companion.

WHEN WE SERVE SANDWICHES

By JOSEPHINE B. GIBSON
Director, Home Economics Dept.,
H. J. Heinz Company

Sandwiches vary all the way from the fancy, dainty bits of goodness which we serve at tea, to the substantial, many-layered sandwiches which are always so popular with men.

Bread for flat sandwiches should be a day old, so as to cut more easily. For rolled sandwiches, or for very thin slices of bread to be buttered and put overlapping on a plate, fresh bread should be used.

White or brown bread, rye, Graham, whole-wheat, raisin, date or nut breads may be used, sometimes two or more kinds together. Long, narrow rolls make attractive sandwiches when sliced lengthwise, buttered and filled. For picnics, the roll may be hollowed and filled with sandwich material. Thin salt wafers or crackers are often used for paste sandwiches.

Bread for fancy sandwiches should be cut in slices as thin as possible and the crusts removed. Picnic and lunchbox sandwiches are cut somewhat thicker and the crusts usually left on. The filling and butter for picnic sandwiches should be increased in proportion to the thickness of the bread.

Here are a few suggestions for delicious sandwiches:

Italian Sandwiches—

¾ cupful minced celery; cayenne pepper; 2 tablespoons Mayonnaise Salad Dressing; white or whole-wheat bread; ¼ cup minced ham; prepared mustard; 2 tablespoons Chili Sauce; butter.

Combine minced ham and celery and season with dash each of cayenne pepper and mustard. Moisten with the mayonnaise and chili sauce. Use white or whole-wheat bread.

Cheese, Olive, and Green Pepper
1 cupful grated American cheese; ¼ cupful minced green peppers; bread; ¼ cup Spanish olives; 2 tablespoons Mayonnaise Salad Dressing; butter.

Mix together cheese, olives, green peppers and mayonnaise. Butter slices of bread, spread half of them with the filling and cover with other slices of bread.

Baked Bean Sandwiches

¾ cupful Oven Baked Beans; 2 tablespoons grated American cheese; salt; 2 tablespoons orange juice; butter; brown bread.

Mash baked beans. Add grated cheese and salt to taste. Moisten with orange juice and spread between slices of buttered brown bread.

Olive Club Sandwiches—

Bread; Mayonnaise Salad Dressing; stuffed Spanish Olives; butter; lettuce leaves; bacon; watercress.

Toast slices of bread one-fourth inch thick until an even golden brown. Butter lightly and let cool slightly. Spread with thick mayonnaise. On half the slices place lettuce leaves and cover with sliced olives. On the remaining toast, arrange slices of broiled bacon. Put together and garnish with watercress.

Garden Sandwiches—Spread whole wheat or rye bread with creamed butter, then with Mayonnaise salad dressing to which enough chopped parsley or cress has been added to color it slightly. Scald, peel, and chill four medium-sized firm tomatoes; pare a cucumber, remove seeds and chop with one-half a green pepper and a small onion; moisten with Mayonnaise Salad Dressing. Slice tomatoes and arrange sandwiches on serving plates as follows:

First a slice of buttered bread, then slices of tomato dusted with salt, pepper, paprika, and spread thinly with Mayonnaise; next a second slice of bread, buttered side up, with the vegetables on it. Garnish with spoonful of Mayonnaise and whole Stuffed Olive.

Hot Ham Sandwiches—Spread thin slice of brown bread with a thin slice of ham, or minced ham, then with a thin layer of Heinz Prepared mustard. Cover mustard with a thin slice of American or Swiss cheese. Cover with another slice of bread. Toast the sandwich, or heat one egg and add to it ¼ teaspoon salt, a dash of pepper and ¾ cup milk. Dip the sandwiches quickly into this mixture and fry until delicately browned in a pan with 3 tablespoons melted butter. Garnish with slices of fresh cucumber pickle and serve at once.

Sandwiches Men Like

Rare roast beef and horseradish and onion minced, on white bread. Swiss cheese, prepared mustard, and rye bread.

Hot Frankfurter sausages in quarter-inch slices, skin removed, and prepared mustard, in rolls or white bread.

Chopped hard-cooked eggs, stuffed olives chopped, and mayonnaise.

MODE-MODELED "BARE-LEG ILLUSION" HOSIERY DAME FASHION'S NEWEST DICTATE

Seamless, Fashioned-Foot Leg-Conforming Hose in Sun Tan Shades and Pencil Roll Ankle Socks Popular Vogue. Smart America favors the bare-leg idea but frowns on the bare-leg fact. The clever new "illusion" hosiery is Dame Fashion's answer to the bare-leg question. Fashioned-foot, seamless hose in sun-tan shades, especially when worn with Pencil-Roll Ankle Socks, give perfectly the sun-tanned bare-leg effect. So finely is this "illusion" hose woven, so mossamer is its sheerness, so natural its shades that it defies detection from actual bare legs. A new scientific knitting process gives these Mode-modeled seamless hose a fashioned shape that makes them cling to the contours of the leg like a second skin. Sun-tan shades to match the complexion of blonde or brunette make the illusion complete. Pencil-Roll Ankle Socks are the perfect complement to the "illusion" hose. These silk socks with a snug, trim rolled top, in a variety of color harmonies, when worn over the "illusion" hose makes the bare-leg effect doubly certain. Together, hose and socks, give the smart woman an opportunity to keep up with the bare-leg vogue without the bare-leg discomfort. (Herbert Photos, New York.)

Fashions for the Smart Woman

A NOVEL COLLAR

It's really a sort of glorified bib, this charming collar. It's typical of the general class of collars which have lent their glamor to the outstanding frocks of Summer, and yet it has an air which is all its own. The scalloping enhances its novelty. Not to be outdone, the skirt exhibits its own style interest in the form of double circular flounces, while there is a bloused effect above the girdle, which is softly draped and tied at one side. It is a frock which is exceedingly effective in a striking, fresh-color combination, such as a capucine print with an eggshell collar. Pictorial Printed Pattern No. 4788. Sizes 14 to 42, 45 cents.

WINS 14 BEAUTY CONTESTS

Eighteen months ago she captured her first trophy. Since then at thirteen other contests, she has always been awarded first prize. (Herbert Photos, N.Y.)

AND how hungry you are after the fireworks are finished! This is what we would suggest you should serve for a bang-up Fourth of July luncheon:

Melon and Pineapple Cup
Cream of Fresh Asparagus Soup
Cheese Crackers
Shell Fish Mayonnaise
Potatoes on the Half Shell
Hot Cloverdale Rolls
Apricot and Lemon Sherbet Cakes
Coffee

And here are the recipes for the dishes which you probably don't know how to make exactly. Each of these recipes will serve eight.

Recipes for Menu

Melon and Pineapple Cup: Have one cup of watermelon balls, one cup of cantaloupe balls, one cup of diced pineapple, one-half cup of pineapple syrup, one-half cup of orange juice and two tablespoons of lemon juice well chilled, and arrange the fruit in glasses. Mix the fruit juices with sugar to taste, pour over the fruit, and serve ice cold.

Cream of Fresh Asparagus Soup: Add two cups of water to two 13-ounce cans of chicken broth and one teaspoon salt, and bring to boiling. Add the tender tops of half a bunch of fresh asparagus cut in small pieces (about two cups), and boil until tender. Meanwhile cut or grind the lower, tougher parts of the asparagus stalks in fine pieces, add to two cups of boiling water. Cook about thirty minutes, and then press through a colander. Sauté one small minced onion in two tablespoons of butter, add two tablespoons of flour and then, gradually, the stock pressed from the asparagus. Cook five minutes, then add to the broth and asparagus mixture. Just before serving add one cup of hot cream. Serve with butter thins spread with grated cheese and browned under the broiler.

Potatoes on the half shell are simply potatoes baked for a while, and cut in two. Then the potato is cut out of the skin, mashed and stuffed back into the "shells" which the baking has hardened, and put into the oven for a few minutes, to brown on top.

Shell Fish Mayonnaise is the pièce de résistance of this nourishing luncheon. To make it mix together one 6-ounce can of lobster, one-half cup of diced cucumbers and some French dressing. Mix one 5½-ounce can of shrimp, one tablespoon of capers, four tablespoons of thinly sliced radishes and some French dressing. Mix one 6½-ounce can of crabmeat and one-half cup of diced celery with two tablespoons of lemon juice. Chill these three mixtures separately. Just before serving moisten each slightly with mayonnaise. On each large serving plate arrange lettuce, place a large spoonful of mayonnaise in center of each, and then put a large spoonful of each salad mixture around this mayonnaise, and garnish with strips of pimiento, ripe olives and sweet pickle fans. Serve the potato on the half shell on the same plate.

Plenty of Dessert

Apricot and Lemon Sherbet: Dissolve one package of lemon flavored gelatin in two cups of boiling water, add one and one-fourth cups of sugar, and cool. Add one cup of cold water, the contents of one No. 2 can of apricots pressed through a sieve and one cup of heavy cream. Freeze and serve. This recipe will serve eight people liberally.

DIVERTING MEDIA FOR HATS; NEW FLARE SKIRT POPULAR

IF STRAW or felt has become an old story when it comes to the chapeau, why not "something different"—say crocheted ostrich, reversible satin, chenille, lace or gay patterned silks. Yes, indeed! There's just any number of interesting media which milliners are working into hats this season.

There is the little cap-toque in the triangle in the picture—a Paris model, of course, one decides that at first glance. Never would guess what it is made of—crocheted ostrich! Just that. Intriguing idea, is it not? Carries promise of what's coming for fall. Black and white clipped ostrich the passing observer for its just like this—the silk is in what is called the Covered Wagon design. Close scrutiny of its patterning reveals a most interesting portrayal of quaint figures—a veritable picture printed on silk. According to some folks' way of thinking "to move in a circle is not progressive — "gets you nowhere." When it comes to the new flare skirt, however, the theory is exploded for moving in a circle, a circular cut if you so please to term it, leads onto foremost chic.

Paris sponsors just such a circular skirt as the smart printed dress in the lower picture adopts. This one-piece cir-is woven, or rather, crocheted just as you see it here and it is surely novel and attractive.

Chenille is an excellent item, too, crocheted similar to the ostrich hat just mentioned. New berets shown in advance millinery collections are crocheted in three and four colors or chenille in small checked and plaided designs.

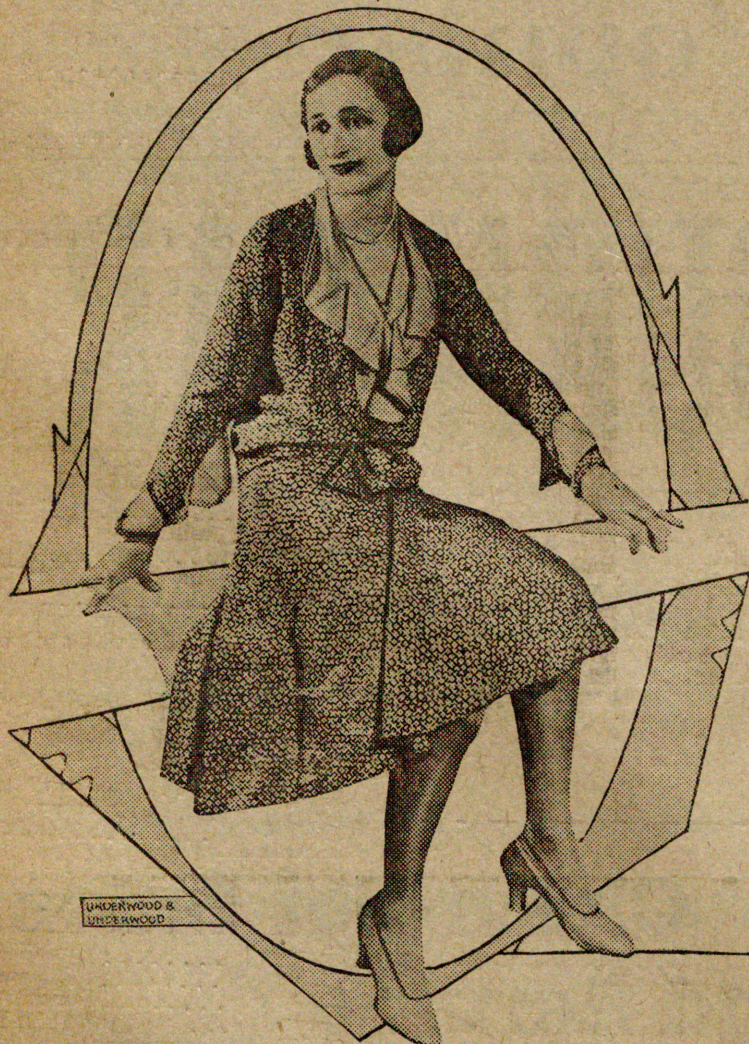

Then there are those novelty sports hats from Renee, which are woven of natural hemp thread combined with a thread of wool. Allover patterns are worked in the wool like an embroidery. These are exclusively for the elite, but they go to show the diversity of media which contribute to the glory of current millinery.

In very smart circles the little toque is made of very wide satin ribbon. The one in the picture to the right happens to be fashioned of reversible black and white satin. In Paris the flair for black and white headgear which sprang up cular flare is even newer for daytime frocks than the tiered flare which places one flounce or section above another.

Much of the advance information concerning fashions "on the way" has to do with flares. The mode seems inclined to flare everything that will submit to a flare. We see this in many costumes which follow up the flare of the skirt with similar flares about the blouse (peplums they call them). The cuffs on the sleeves are flared, too, and the fanciful jabots which so fashionably trim also are cut in a series of flares.

When it comes to the new coats, fashionists are in a decidedly flaring mood. There are flares and flares, some at the sides, others at the back, also all around effects. These are achieved with ingenious godets mostly although circular cut sections are also employed coming from slightly fitted tops. Noteworthy among advance coats are types fashioned of flat fur in the early spring has kept on gaining momentum until it has developed into a full-fledged vogue maintaining as time is proving throughout the summer months.

The hat made of basket-woven ribbon is very swaggy, too. Often they are worked out in a single color, then again a checkerboard effect is achieved with contrasting ribbons.

As to millinery "sets" of sprightly print silks or of gay cottons or linens, for that matter, the program is continuous. The woman wearing a hat and scarf ensemble such as the one shown at the top in upper illustration need not be surprised at the gaze of for the upper fitted portion to which circular or flaring fabric skirts, velvet or cloth, are attached.

Coming back to the dress in the picture it carries that Parisian note of chic—the jabot collar. Ever so many of the printed frocks are enhanced with cascades of self material or of dainty lingerie.

The latest fascination in lingerie accessories is that of fine plaitings of sheer batiste or organdie. Not only do they give a final touch of charm to printed dresses, but it is quite a fad for plain silk crepe to take on this pretty bit of femininity.

SUMMER DRINKS

It is surprising the amount of bottled drinks that are sold during the warm weather to young children. No artificial flavors can possibly compete with the natural flavor of fruit juices. Such drinks may be prepared at home and one is sure of their wholesomeness.

Fruit Sirup.—To one pound of sugar, add one quart of water and boil five minutes. Cool, add the strained juice in any proportion desired. If cocoa is preferred, use one-half cupful of cocoa, two cupfuls of sugar and one cupful of boiling water; cook at the boiling point for five minutes. When cool add a drop or two of cinnamon or vanilla and use about two tablespoonfuls to a glass.

Malted milks may be purchased now of chocolate flavor as well as plain. If liked cold a spoonful of vanilla ice cream shaken with the malted milk makes a most nourishing and at the same time refreshing drink.

With the wholesome fruit colorings now in the markets one may have a dash of green, yellow or red to make the drink more attractive.

Carbonated water with a siphon may be the equipment of the home, giving delight to the children who love the fizzy drinks.

Egg lemonades and egg-nogs, when given to children with an accessory or two, and a couple of straws, will solve the question of eggs when they are needed in the diet.

The acid fruits give energy and counteract fatigue and lassitude caused by high temperatures, so they are invaluable for the whole family during the summer. Almost all kinds of fruit juices may be bought in bottles, but with a wealth of fruit each year going to waste, one may put up enough to supply the family needs. Apple juice, elderberry, free for the taking if you can get there before the birds, and all the berries which are grown in our gardens, offer a wealth of good drinks.

Chocolate Cream Float.—Take two tablespoonfuls of rich chocolate sirup made from two squares of chocolate, grated, one cupful of sugar and a cupful of water, cooked until thick and flavored with vanilla or cinnamon. Put into a glass, add chipped ice until the glass is half full, fill with milk, and serve with whipped cream on top.

Salads for Summer.

All business houses give vacations to their employees; why do not the housewives and mothers make a rule that they, too, shall have a week or two for vacationing?

If each member of the household took a small part in its work there would be many hours of leisure for rest and recreation for the housemother.

Summer can be a happy time for all members of the family, but each must take his share of the burden.

Simplicity and attractiveness is the keynote of summer meals. There are hundreds of varieties of salads and sandwiches; cold meats are easy to prepare, and fresh fruits and vegetables abundant. A mother will often find that a basket packed with a lunch and eaten in the out-of-doors is easier than getting a meal and clearing away after in the home.

Carrot Salad.—Grate or put through the meat grinder enough carrots to make a cupful and a half. Mix with finely diced celery, a bit of pineapple or apple, add mayonnaise and serve on lettuce. This is a salad which is good for old and young. A bit of onion may be added to the carrot if desirable while grinding.

Ginger Ale Salad.—Soften one-fourth of a package of gelatin in one-fourth cupful of cold water and let dissolve in a dish of hot water; add a grating of lemon rind and one and three-fourths cupfuls of ginger ale. Turn into small molds to chill and set. Serve on hearts of lettuce with a french dressing or a mayonnaise.

Cottage Cheese Salad.—On lettuce arrange a circle of cottage cheese well seasoned and put through a ricer. In the center put yolks of hard-cooked eggs seasoned and rice. Serve with a snappy french dressing as follows:

Take one cupful of any good vegetable oil, one-third of a cupful of lemon juice, two tablespoonfuls of sugar, a teaspoonful of salt and one-half can of tomato soup with a dash of cayenne and paprika.

Sweet Fruit Salad.—Take one banana, one orange, one can of pineapple, twelve marshmallows cut fine, one apple all cut into fine pieces and one-half pound of walnuts. When ready to serve add a tablespoonful of mayonnaise to a cupful of whipped cream and a teaspoonful of powdered sugar.

Many Pay Tribute To Mrs. E. Cappel

The last time she attended the church service was on Palm Sunday evening, when all confidants of St. John's held a reunion. Grandmother Cappel was the oldest confirmed member of the church present and was honored with a beautiful bouquet of roses.

In the year 1871 on Feb. 18th she was united in marriage with John Cappel. To this union were born 14 children, of whom seven are still living. Her husband preceded her in death in April 1897.

She was left with a large family and this family she reared as a hard toiling mother and her efforts were largely blessed in that she was able to rear this large family of which a mother indeed may be proud.

She is survived by five sons, John Cappel, Mattoon, Ill., Andrew, Emil, Fred and Albert all of Mokena; two daughters, Mrs. Ida Mancke, and Mrs. Alma Hauck also of Mokena; 15 grand children and three great grand children; one sister, Mrs. Catherine Eicholzer of Joliet.

Rock Island To Lower Tracks

Rumors are afloat again that the Rock Island is contemplating depressing their tracks thru Mokena same as they are doing at Minooka and that the job is to be done next year. Rumors have it that there is to be a 22 foot cut made thru the village similar to the cut on the I. C. at Monaca. These reports have not been confirmed.

Infectious Diseases

The Public Health service says that extensive investigations and surveys made by the medical authorities have shown that the prevalence of infectious diseases among civilized nations is infinitely less than among inhabitants of uncivilized countries.

Important Waterway

The Suez canal, opened in 1869, has a length of 101 miles, and a minimum width of 147 feet, 8 inches. The maximum draught of water allowed for vessels using the canal is 32 feet. The average time for transit through the canal is 15 hours 20 minutes. The canal is owned by a company, and Great Britain holds a controlling interest in the company.
